

INTRODUCTION

We started Liam & Noah Films because we've always loved filmmaking and storytelling, but when we started looking at wedding films, something never quite clicked with us. So many of them felt the same. Slow, dramatic, heavily staged, and focused on making everything look perfect. It felt like there were these unwritten rules about what a wedding film was supposed to be.

To us, weddings are full of energy. They are loud, emotional, unpredictable, and sometimes completely chaotic. They are people laughing until they cry, parents getting emotional during speeches, friends dancing like nobody is watching, drinks being spilled, inside jokes, nervous anticipation, and all the little moments that happen when everyone you love is in the same room. It is one of those days that you spend months or even years looking forward to, and then somehow it is over in what feels like a few hours. You wish you could slow it down and stay in that moment a little longer. Unfortunately, time machines do not exist. But a camera comes pretty close.

That is what we want our films to do. We want you to be able to press play years from now and feel like you are back there. Not just watching a highlight reel of what happened, but actually remembering what it felt like to be there. Hearing your friends laugh, hearing your voices during your vows, watching your parents react to the speeches, and seeing all the little moments you never knew happened.

Our approach is rooted in documentary filmmaking, but we still love the beauty and emotion that comes with cinematic storytelling. We care about how a film looks, but the story always comes first. We are not interested in forcing moments, staging every shot, or making your wedding feel like something it was not. We want to capture you as you actually are. Every couple is different, and that is what makes this so exciting for us. Some weddings are calm and intimate. Others are loud and completely packed with energy. Some couples are emotional, some are goofy, and most are a combination of both. We want our films to reflect that. We want your personalities, your people, and your relationship to come through in a way that feels honest and natural.

We also believe that the moments you do not plan are often the ones you end up caring about the most. A quick conversation with a grandparent. Your best friend losing it during a speech. The look on someone's face when they see you walk down the aisle. The ridiculous dance moves that nobody thought would make it into the final film. Those are the things that make your wedding yours. We are still in the early stages of building Liam & Noah Films, and we love that.

We are constantly experimenting, trying new ideas, learning from every wedding, and finding new ways to tell stories. We never want to stop being curious about what we can create.

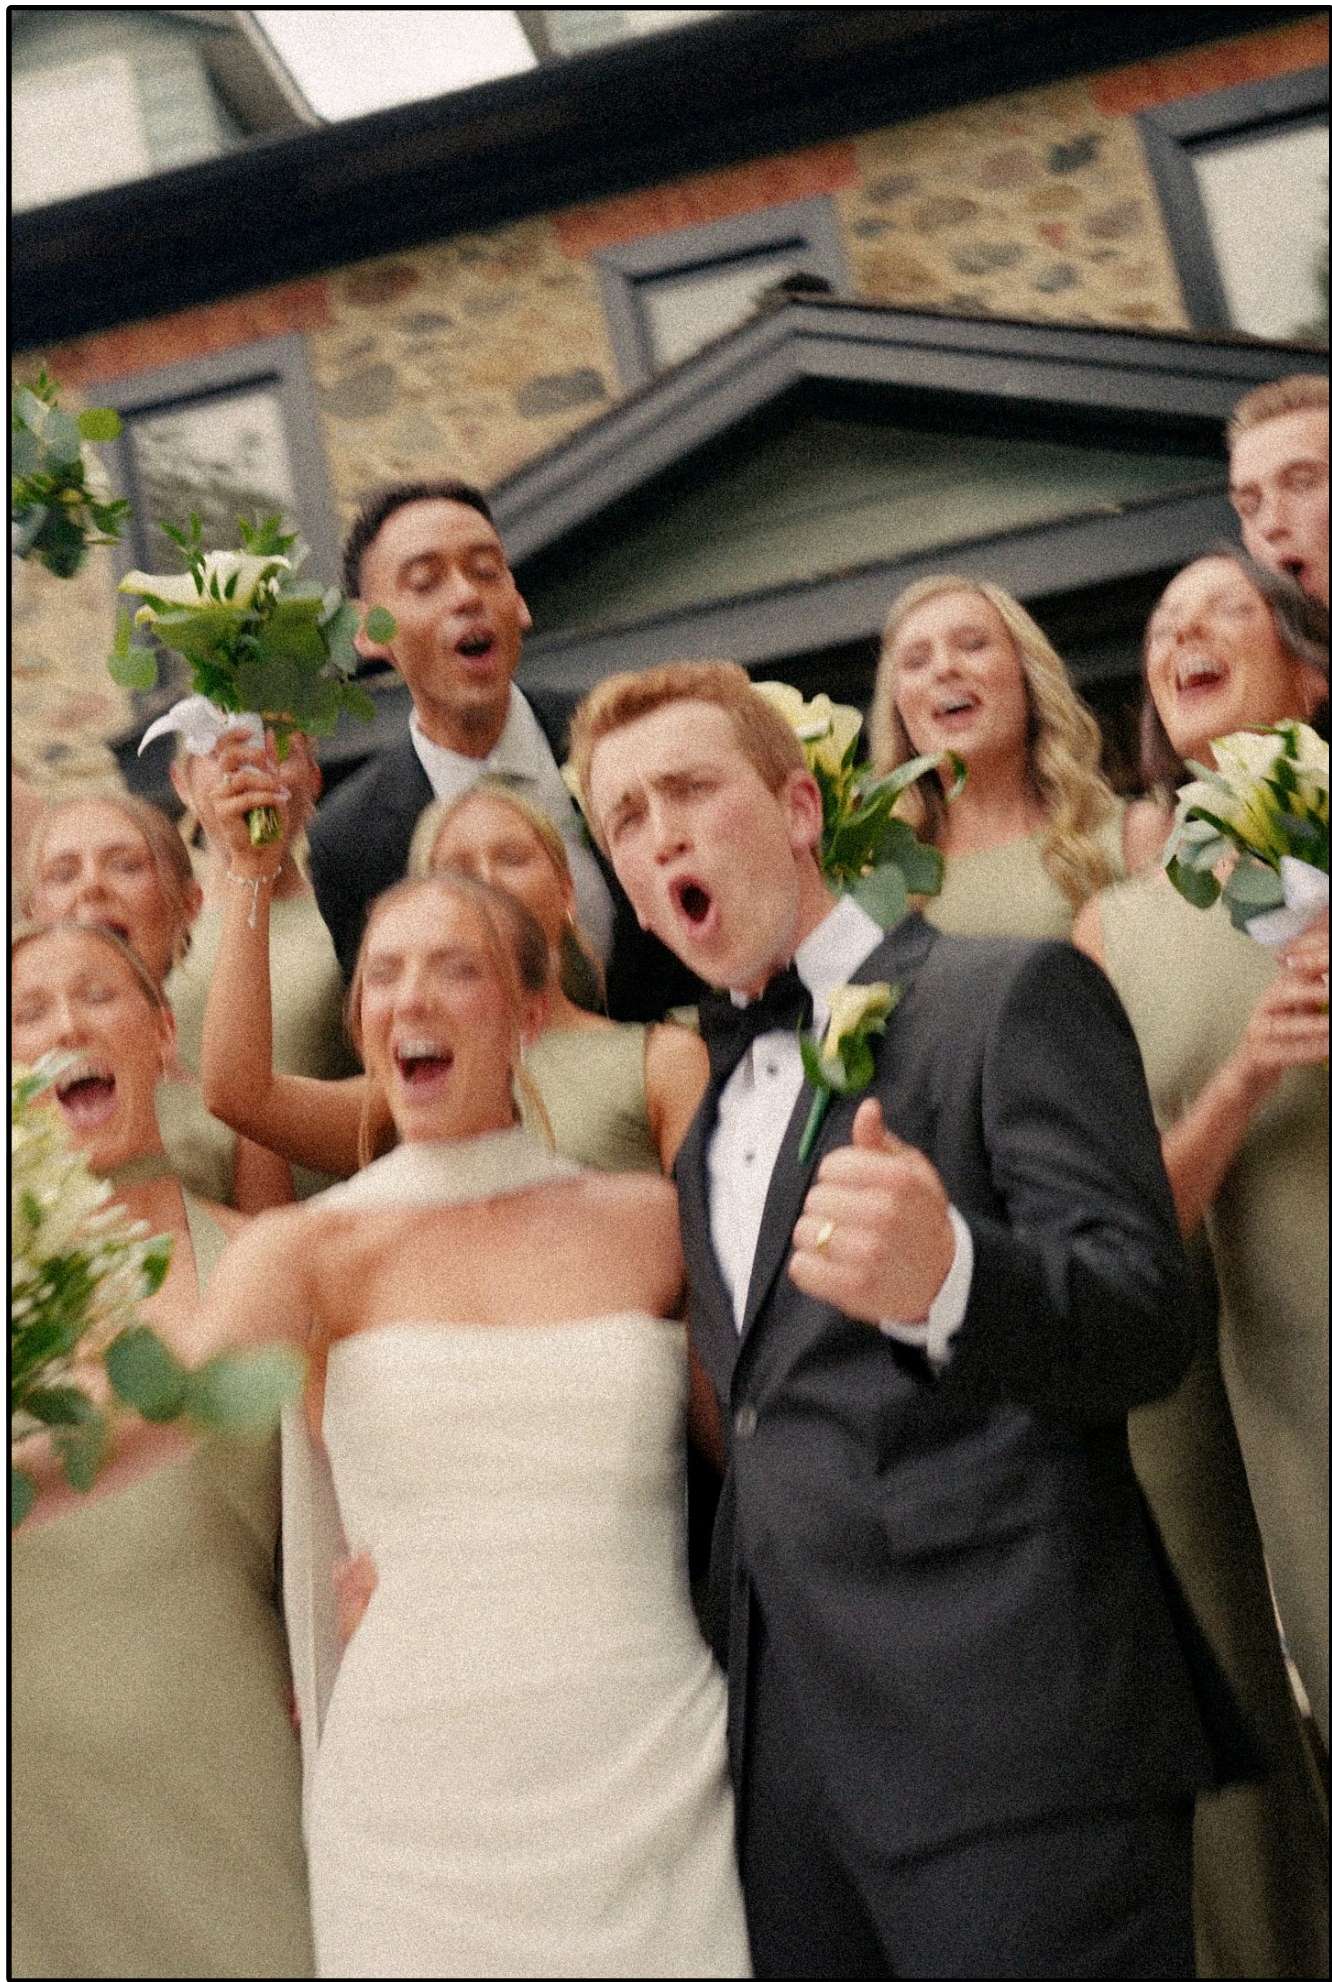

Most importantly, we want to make something that you will actually want to watch. Something that feels like you. Something that brings back the people, the sounds, the laughter, the nerves, and the feeling of having everyone you love together in one place. Your wedding only happens once. We want to make sure you can experience it again.

“Love isn’t just an emotion,
it’s a celebration.”

FAQs

This is a lot of information... Can we just meet instead?

Absolutely! We actually prefer it that way. Whether it's a video call, phone call, or meeting in person, we believe getting to know each other is one of the most important parts of the process. After all, we'll be spending one of the most meaningful days of your life alongside you, capturing the moments that matter most. We want you to feel comfortable with us, not just as your filmmakers, but as people. So rather than going back and forth over emails, we'd love to sit down, hear your story, and talk about what you're envisioning for your wedding day. Just send us a message with your wedding date, venue, and a little about yourselves, and we'll take it from there.

Are you available for our wedding, and do you travel?

Absolutely! We're based in Ontario, Canada, and are available to capture weddings across the province and anywhere in the world. We love the idea of travelling to new places, experiencing different cultures, and telling stories that are unique to each couple. Whether you're celebrating close to home or planning a destination wedding somewhere across the world, we'd love to be a part of it. To check our availability, simply reach out with your wedding date, location, and a little about yourselves. We'd love to hear what you're planning and see if we're the right fit for your day.

What is the normal delivery time for a wedding film?

Our typical delivery time is 10–13 weeks following your wedding day. We believe every wedding film deserves the time and attention it takes to tell the story properly. Our approach is rooted in documentary filmmaking, meaning we carefully piece together the real moments, emotions, and voices that made your day what it was. We never want to rush that process, because these are memories you'll be looking back on for the rest of your lives.

Can I pay in instalments?

Absolutely! We understand that planning a wedding comes with a lot of expenses, and we want to make the process as easy as possible. We require an initial deposit to officially secure your wedding date, with the remaining balance typically due one week before your wedding. However, if you'd prefer to split your payments into instalments, we're more than happy to work out a payment schedule that makes things easier for you. Just let us know what works best, and we'll do our best to make everything simple and stress-free.

Do you offer custom packages?

We've carefully designed our wedding packages to give couples everything they need to have their story told in a meaningful and complete way. Because of this, we typically stick to our existing packages rather than creating custom ones. However, we understand that destination weddings and multi-day celebrations can look a little different. For these occasions, we're always happy to have a conversation and explore what might work best. If you have any questions or something unique in mind, we'd love to hear about it.

Love,
Liam and Noah
