NGO & Civil Society Organisation Pledge

We the leadership and staff of this organisation, pledge to do no harm. We will not accept funding, frameworks, or partnerships that require us to be silent about the hostile environment or complicit in its enforcement. We will not reduce people to cases, to numbers, to beneficiaries. We exist to defend rights, not to manage the consequences of their removal.

We recognise that the sector we work in has too often been drawn into delivering the hostile environment while believing it was resisting it. We have administered systems that sort people into deserving and undeserving. We have accepted contracts that require us to monitor, report, and condition our support. We have used the language of compassion while operating within a framework designed to deny dignity. That ends here.

We will say what needs saying, publicly, even when it is uncomfortable, even when it risks funding, even when it puts us at odds with the institutions we are expected to collaborate with. Silence from organisations that exist to protect human rights is not diplomacy. It is complicity.

We will centre the voices, leadership, and expertise of people with lived experience of the hostile environment, not as consultation, not as testimony, but as authority. Nothing about us without us is not a slogan we put on our website. It is how we will operate.

We will not compete for funding in ways that undermine solidarity between organisations. We will share resources, platforms, and power. We will support smaller, grassroots, migrant-led organisations rather than absorbing their work or speaking over them.

NGO & Civil Society Organisation Pledge

We will review our programmes, partnerships, and public positions to ensure that nothing we do, however unintentionally, makes the hostile environment easier to enforce or harder to resist.

We sign this pledge publicly and we invite the people we serve, our funders, our peers, and our communities to hold us to it.
