1. Relationship with the Master

This Schedule forms part of the contract for Out of Your Head together with the version of BWB’s Master Digital Product End User Licence Agreement presented and accepted for the purchase. “Customer” and “you” have the meanings given in the Master. The Customer may be an individual purchasing for permitted use within one Licensed Business or an organization purchasing through an authorized representative.

This Product is supplied under a Single-Business Licence. Sections 3–6 specify the permitted working copies, internal participation, contractor assistance, completed-output handoffs and assistive AI use. Those permissions prevail over inconsistent general restrictions in the Master, but only within their stated limits. All other Master provisions continue to apply.

Short copyright notices, workbook footers and similar summaries must be read subject to these express permissions. They do not prohibit a use expressly allowed by the applicable licence.

2. Product covered

“Product” means the Out of Your Head guided workbook, its worksheets and reusable Creative Direction Sheet template, in the formats actually included in your accepted offer. Formats may include a fillable PDF, a Google Docs copy, a permitted Word export and printouts from supplied digital files. Mentioning a format does not promise its inclusion. Companion products, source/design files, coaching, workshops and future editions are excluded unless expressly included in the accepted offer.3. Licensed business and working copies

The “Licensed Business” has the meaning given in the Master. It may be identified in the order or, if the order does not provide a designation facility, recorded by the Customer before first organizational use. A trading name or brand is not a separate licensee. Related companies and other separate entities are not included merely because they share ownership, staff or premises.

You may repeatedly complete the Product for the Licensed Business’s own brands, projects and internal business activities. This licence has no separate project, brand or numerical staff-seat limit within that one business. You may make reasonable blank masters, working copies, backups and printouts for authorised use, complete the answer areas, and adapt the Creative Direction Sheet to record and communicate your business’s direction. This does not permit creating a distributable template or toolkit.

4. Staff and contractor collaboration

Employees, officers and directors of the Licensed Business may use working copies for that business, whether the Customer is the business itself or an individual purchaser. An agency, freelancer, creator or other contractor may access the parts reasonably needed to help complete or apply your direction, solely on your behalf. Restrict access, explain the licence boundaries, and require contractors not to retain reusable blank tools or use the Product for other clients. Participation gives a contractor no independent product licence.

When its authorised work ends, end a contractor's access to working or blank materials and require their deletion or return. Completed Outputs may be retained only as section 5 permits. Your own internal team sessions are permitted; selling training, facilitation or access to the Product is not included.

5. Completed outputs and handoff

A "Completed Output" is a direction sheet, brief or extract meaningfully completed with your business's own principles, decisions and content. Adding a name or a few entries to a substantially blank workbook is insufficient. Instructions, examples and blank or reusable tools remain Product materials.

You may share Completed Outputs with people who need them to create, review, approve or implement work for the Licensed Business, including agencies, creators, designers and retailers. BWB permits its embedded sheet layout and headings to accompany that handoff solely for that purpose. Recipients may use and retain the output for that business's work and necessary records, not extract it as a reusable tool. This does not authorise public posting of the completed workbook or redistribution of instructional pages.

You may extract and publish your own direction statements and resulting advertisements or creative work without reproducing the Product. No BWB attribution is required on resulting creative work; preserve existing rights notices on Product copies and handed-off sheets. This Schedule requires no transfer of your content to BWB or permission to use it in BWB marketing.

6. Using direction with AI tools

The assistive use expressly permitted by this section is an exception to the Master's general AI restrictions. It does not permit model training, fine-tuning, distribution of the workbook or creation of a reusable source library for unrelated users or businesses. You may submit your own answers or a Completed Output, including its sheet layout permitted by section 5, to an access-restricted AI workspace solely to assist the Licensed Business's work. You must be authorised to disclose the information, check the provider's terms and settings, and use controls that do not allow provider model training, public access, unrelated reuse or access by unauthorised users.

This excludes uploading the complete workbook, instructional pages, examples or blank templates; model training or fine-tuning using Product materials; and shared or reusable source libraries for unrelated users or businesses. A private paid account alone does not establish compliance. If required controls cannot be confirmed, do not submit Product material; use only your own content where authorised to disclose it. Review AI-assisted work before implementation.

7. Uses requiring another licence

Except for authorised contractor assistance under section 4, this licence excludes using the Product to deliver services to another business or client, distributing blank or editable tools to clients, multi-entity/group access, paid facilitation for others, resale, sublicensing, public template libraries and repackaging protected Product material as another product or service. An agency may assist a licensed business under section 4; buying one copy for the agency does not license its client engagements. Obtain an expressly agreed licence before those uses. Nothing restricts a use that applicable law permits despite the contract.

8. Duration, access and other terms

The Master governs licence duration, territory, transfer, suspension, termination and its effects, including retained copies and outputs. This Schedule adds no different term or territory. The accepted offer and applicable sale/order terms govern delivery, redownload access, support, updates, payment, cancellation and refunds. A right to use a supplied file is distinct from availability of a download link or third-party service; neither is expanded here.

Following termination, Customer retains ownership of Customer Content. Previously and lawfully created Completed Outputs may continue to be used and retained in their completed form for the Licensed Business's work and necessary records, including the embedded layout and headings permitted by section 5. This exception does not authorize new workbook use, new working copies, reusable-template extraction, continued unauthorized distribution or retention of material that must otherwise be removed by law.

9. Product-specific limits

The Product helps record and communicate creative direction. A completed sheet, cold-read result or internal approval does not establish legal clearance, distinctiveness or improved sales. Obtain appropriate rights for third-party references and independent review of advertising claims. The Product supplies no rights in referenced third-party work and does not replace strategy, a creative brief, brand guidelines or professional review. These scope statements do not exclude mandatory rights or reduce an express commitment in the accepted order or Master.

10. Formats and technical requirements

Out of Your Head is a downloadable workbook, not a hosted application. The included working formats are a fillable PDF and access to a Google Docs copy. A Microsoft Word .docx version can be exported from the Google Docs copy. You may also print the supplied workbook for permitted completion by hand.

Fillable PDF. Use a computer with an up-to-date desktop PDF application that supports completing and saving form fields. BWB recommends Adobe Acrobat Reader. Acrobat Pro is not required to complete existing fields. Browser previews and mobile PDF applications may handle fields, saving or printing differently; compatibility with every application is not promised.

Google Docs. You need a Google account, a compatible browser and internet access to open the copy link and create your own working copy. Your organization's account settings may restrict access or copying. Confirm that your changes have saved and synchronized before closing.

Microsoft Word. To use the Word format, first create the Google Docs copy and export it as a .docx file. You need software capable of opening and editing that format. Formatting and controls may differ from the PDF and Google Docs versions. Microsoft software is not included; any applicable subscription or licence cost is your responsibility.

Printing and saving. A printer and paper are needed only if you choose to work by hand. Keep a blank original, save a named working copy and test that you can save and reopen an answer before completing the workbook. Review print preview because long PDF field entries may not display or print in full.

Third-party services. Third-party accounts and applications are subject to their providers' terms. No paid third-party account is required for the PDF route using Adobe Acrobat Reader. Requirements for your chosen alternative software may differ.

Delivery timing and any download-access period are stated in the offer and order confirmation. Future editions, indefinite download hosting, live facilitation and personalized advisory support are not included unless expressly stated.

If a supplied file or access link does not work as described, contact support@brandworthbuying.com. These requirements do not remove BWB's responsibility for defective delivery, material misdescription or another remedy required by law.
