Community Group Pledge

We the members of this group, pledge to do no harm. We will not look the other way when harm is done to our neighbours. We will not accept that cruelty is someone else's problem, or that solidarity is someone else's job. We will not wait for permission to protect the people around us.

We will educate ourselves and each other about how the hostile environment works, not as an abstract policy, but as a lived reality in our streets, our schools, our workplaces, and our services. We will learn what our rights are, what the rights of our neighbours are, and how to use them.

We will organise. We will accompany people to appointments. We will attend immigration reporting centres. We will show up when raids happen. We will know who in our community is at risk and we will make sure they are not alone. We will build networks of care that do not depend on the state, because the state has made itself untrustworthy.

We will challenge hostile environment policies in our local institutions, our council, our school, our GP surgery, our library, and demand that they sign the Do No Harm pledge. We will not accept "we are just following the rules" as an answer, because following harmful rules is a choice, and we will name it as one.

We will make cruelty explicitly, publicly, unmistakably unacceptable in our community. Not through outrage alone, but through sustained, organised, collective action. Because what harms some of us harms all of us, and this is our community. We decide what is acceptable in it.

We sign this pledge and we hold ourselves to it.
