our new home!!

aaplus.co is now live 🌸

Champs, our new home is finally here, and I couldn't be more excited to share it with you!! One of our biggest priorities for the new website was making it simple, clear, and easy on the eyes — we all lead busy lives, and we wanted your time on the AA Plus site to be seamless and fuss-free.

Replays were another big priority. So many of you rely on them, so we brought it back and made sure everything now lives in one organised place — easy to browse, and even easier to find exactly what you're looking for. We're still transferring older TKVs, but about 70% of our replays are already in, with more being added regularly, so bear with us a little as we finish moving everything across.

While you're there, don't forget to give our Library and Closer some love too! All of our publications and Closer editions are now archived and ready to be revisited. I am also excited to introduce AA Plus Studio - this is where your favourite Mixtapes and Wallpaper live, and this is also where we will be rolling out more fun things over time, so keep an eye on it, In Sha Allah.

To log in, simply click "login" on aaplus.co and make yourself at home. :) Take a look around because we think you'll notice a few little details we tucked in just for you. ❤️

coming up on aa plus:

How are you, really?

 Tuesday, 25 Aug · 8 PM (SG) / 1 PM (UK)

 With Ustazah Zahratur Rofiqah

Next week, Ustazah Zahratur Rofiqah is leading a class that's close to my heart — because it started with a question she asked me. "How are you, really, Kak Aida?" And I just... broke. Burst into tears, right there. There's something disarming about being asked that question and having someone genuinely waiting for the real, honest answer.

Now imagine if that question is coming from Rasulullah ﷺ.

The one who prayed and wept for you. The one who was always concerned for you. This Rabiulawal, I hope you will give yourself permission to come exactly as you are - tired, worried, unsure - and let us sit with this question together.

a beautiful du'a

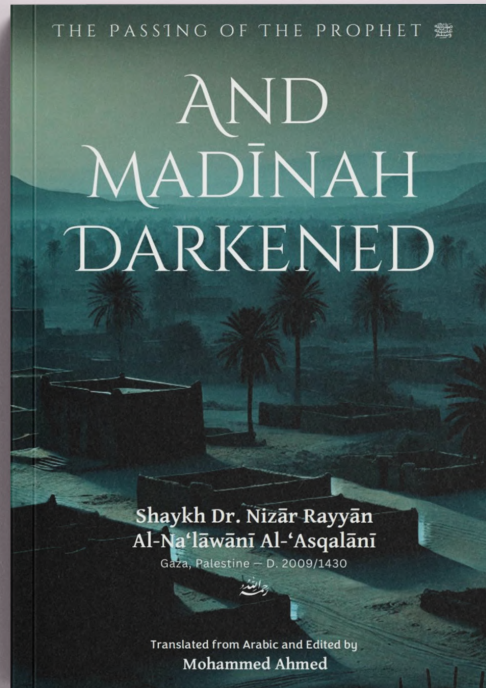

Ya Allah, allow me
to remember that seeking Your relief
is not a lack of patience,
but a declaration of
my complete need
for You.

#abeautifuldua

After last week's Class on Ta'if with Ustazah Huraidah (replay coming soon, In Sha Allah!), I have been making Du'a to Allah SWT for Afiya - for relief, safety, and ease. Rasulullah ﷺ taught us that accepting Allah's Qadr doesn't mean silencing your pain; it means directing that pain toward the only One Who can lift it. Champs, may we remember that seeking ease from Allah SWT isn't a lack of patience; it is us admitting that we are completely in need of Him.

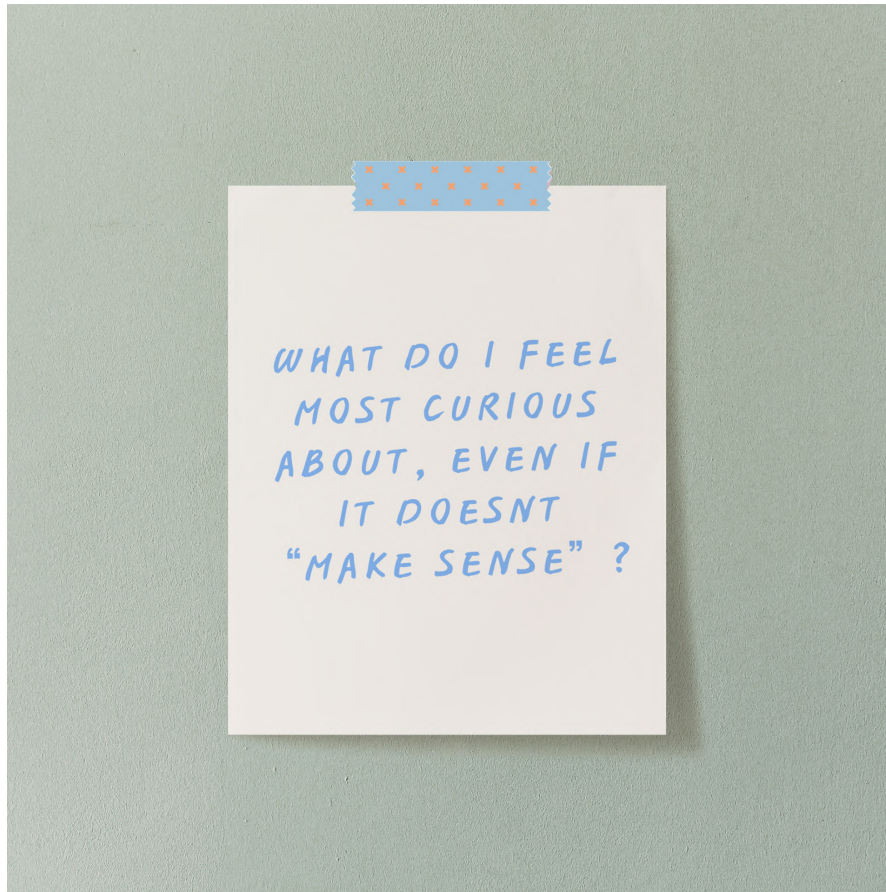

#areads

I've been reading And Madinah Darkened, written by Shaykh Dr. Nizar Rayyan of Gaza in 1996, and it has completely moved my heart.

It is a carefully curated compilation of verified narrations drawn exclusively from the six Canonical Books of Hadith (Bukhari, Muslim, Abi Dawud, Tirmidhi, Nasa'i, Ibn Majah) . Because every detail is strictly grounded in authentic sources, the narrative carries a quiet, undeniable weight. I felt as though I was right there among the Sahabah, feeling the sheer weight of love and reverence they have for Rasulullah ﷺ. If your heart needs a gentle, sacred pause this week, I couldn't recommend it enough!

to ponder

Honestly, I have a running list. Right now it's why the same fruits and vegetables come in completely different colours: green and purple grapes, green and black olives, yellow, red and green peppers. It's not a "useful" question, but that's kind of the point. Curiosity doesn't need a purpose to be worth chasing but it's simply a way of "staying awake" to the majesty of Allah's creations. So, Champs, what's on your "Im Curious About This" list? Share with me!
