PORTFOLIO UPDATE

During August 2026, the Fund's NAV increased by 1.26%, bringing year-to-date returns to 4.66%. Fund performance remained resilient despite geopolitical uncertainty and rapidly shifting expectations around US interest rates. Geographically, India, Mexico and Saudi Arabia are the key positive contributors. Sectorially, Financial, Consumer Cyclical and Energy are the key positive contributors.

Inflation and labour-market pressures continued to moderate. Headline CPI eased to 3.4% YoY and core CPI to 2.5%, while wage growth slowed to around 3.2%, its weakest pace in more than five years. July payrolls declined by 23,000, with revisions bringing average job creation over the past three months to just 20,000 per month. GDP growth remained positive, although increasingly concentrated in technology-related investment.

Short-end rates remain volatile as markets continue to oscillate between expectations of rate cuts and hikes, underscoring the difficulty of forecasting Fed policy. More importantly, risks remain concentrated at the long end of the curve, driven by fiscal deficits near 6% of GDP, federal debt above US$40 trillion, Treasury supply and heavy AI-related issuance. Since the start of 2026, long-term yields have risen 51bps, compared with just a 7bps increase in inflation expectations—suggesting that fiscal and supply concerns, rather than inflation or Fed policy, are increasingly driving long-end yields. This reinforces our preference for the 2–3 year segment, which remains relatively insulated from these pressures.

The Fund's short-duration portfolio combines attractive carry with lower interest-rate sensitivity, reduced volatility and faster pull-to-par, providing greater return visibility while limiting exposure to long-end volatility. With yields still elevated, we believe income and disciplined credit selection—not duration or interest-rate speculation—remain the more compelling drivers of fixed-income returns.
