Swiped, Scammed, Survived: The Psychology Behind the Tinder Swindler

Get the inside scoop on Netflix's most-watched documentary, The Tinder Swindler!

It's a mistake to think scams happen to gullible people or that they just happen because someone stops paying attention. The reality is far more complicated. In this compelling fireside chat, Ayleen Charlotte, featured in Netflix's The Tinder Swindler, shares her firsthand story as the target of a sophisticated scheme and explores the psychological tactics scammers use to manipulate trust, emotion, and decision-making.

Through her personal story and expert insights gained over years of advocacy, Ayleen reveals how our own biases can be used against us.

Attendees will gain a deeper understanding of social engineering, why scams are fundamentally psychological crimes, and practical strategies for recognizing manipulation before it succeeds. This session offers a powerful reminder that scams are not a failure of intelligence, but an exploitation of the human nature that flows in all of us.
