I make technical tools work for people who aren't specialists. 7+ years designing security, data, and developer platforms, most recently AI tools for security teams. Comfortable being the first designer in the room and building from zero.

EXPERIENCE

Databricks · Senior Product Designer

Jul 2026 to Present

Contract · Remote

- Design AI powered security tools used by both technical and non technical teams
- Working on Lakewatch, Databricks' security product built after acquiring Panther
- Currently in beta and under NDA. Happy to walk through my process in conversation

Panther · Senior Product Designer

Sep 2025 to Jul 2026

San Francisco Bay Area · Acquired by Databricks

- Continued as senior designer after Panther acquired Datable.io
- Owned design for every AI surface in the product, including the AI chat experience and the AI landing page
- Designed agentic runbooks with people kept in control: an AI that helps write runbooks, approval gates before any action runs, and approvals right in Slack

Datable.io · Founding Product Designer

Jul 2024 to Sep 2025

Acquired by Panther

- First and only designer, shaping the product from the ground up
- Designed a visual pipeline builder so teams could route telemetry data to different destinations without writing config by hand
- Product was acquired by Panther in Sep 2025

Revvable · Senior Product Designer

Mar 2022 to Jul 2024

San Francisco, CA · Second designer, 12th hire

- Early designer on a CRM and credit application platform for powersports dealers
- Shifted the product from opportunity first to contact first, with texts, emails, notes, and payment requests in one activity thread per customer
- Broke the paper credit app into short tap to answer steps and saved the lead after step 3, so dealers could follow up on unfinished apps
- Ran weekly calls with advisor dealers and visited dealerships in SF and Oakland to watch staff use the product
- Revvable now serves 350+ dealerships and still leads with the credit app and activity thread I designed
