Sleep habits amongst students

This project was developed during my exchange at Malmö University and represents a first step towards a system to assist students in maintaining healthy sleep habits. The Breathing Flower learns the user's breathing patterns through sensors and replicates them by moving the petals of the flower in and out. It then guides them through breathing exercises. The result is an IoT and AI system comprising a nightstand device, a breathing companion, an AI assistant, and a computer application.

Steam

In my most recent project we worked with the question "How can we implement STEAM education in a small-scale, practical and valuable basis in primary schools? STEAM education promotes the integration between science, technology, engineering, mathematics, and the arts. We captured this experience and shared it through an instagram page called: Waanzinnig leren.
