Subject: Proud to Have Witnessed This Moment with You on Site

Dear Jagdish Ji,

I received your letter dated 16 January 2026, and I read it with a deep sense of pride and emotion. Thank you for your generous words. More than the records themselves, what stays with me is the experience of being on site with you and your team during those crucial days—watching the plan turn into action, and action turn into history.

Standing there on the NH 544G corridor, watching layer after layer being laid with clockwork precision, I could feel the intensity, focus, and quiet confidence of your entire team. I still remember the long hours, the constant coordination, the quick decisions taken on the ground, and the calm way in which challenges were handled. These moments reminded me that world records are not achieved in celebration—they are achieved in dust, heat, fatigue, and unwavering commitment.

What impressed me the most was your presence on site—not as a distant leader, but as someone deeply involved, listening, encouraging, and standing shoulder to shoulder with your engineers and supervisors. That kind of leadership creates belief. And belief, more than machinery or numbers, is what carried this team through to achieving four Guinness World Records, including breaking your own previous benchmark.

I would also like to acknowledge something that often remains behind the scenes but is absolutely essential—the role of family support. Great achievements are never individual efforts alone. The unwavering encouragement, understanding, and active involvement of your family have clearly played a strong role in giving you the strength and balance needed to pursue such demanding goals. Their support has been a quiet yet powerful pillar behind this success.

A Word from the Heart to the Site Teams

To every engineer, supervisor, operator, technician, driver, and worker who stood on that stretch near Puttaparthi—this achievement belongs to you. I saw the tired faces that still smiled, the hands that never slowed down, and the pride in your eyes when the numbers were finally confirmed. You worked through day and night, away from families, pushing your limits so that the nation could move faster and better. Please know that your effort has not gone unnoticed. You have created history, and you should carry that pride with you for the rest of your lives.

At the Build India Foundation, we often speak about nation-building as a shared journey. Being part of this moment with Rajpath Infracon reinforced my belief that India's future is in safe hands—hands that are skilled, honest, and driven by purpose. This project will be remembered not just for its records, but for the spirit with which it was executed.

Thank you once again, Jagdish Ji, for your warmth, trust, and partnership. It has been an honour to witness this milestone alongside you. I have no doubt that this is only the beginning of many more achievements that will set new standards for Indian infrastructure.

My heartfelt congratulations to you and your entire team. May you continue to build roads that don't just connect cities, but also inspire generations.

With warm regards and deep respect,
