The collaboration:

About d.ls x stylt

The collaboration with Stylt Trampoli, led by creative director & founder Erik Nissen Johansen, brings a visionary, hospitality-led design perspective to the debut collection of d.ls – Duni Lighting Solutions. Together, the collaboration sets a new standard for cordless ambience in contemporary hospitality, where narrative, atmosphere, and design converge.

Stytl Trampoli is responsible for the creative vision and design language of the collection, shaping how light becomes experience and how atmosphere is expressed through form, material, and storytelling. The collaboration reflects a polymath approach—where disciplines meet, materials are reimaged, and waste is transformed into ambience.

The collection premieres globally during Milan Design Week and represents a convergence of visionary design, sustainable materials, developed in close collaboration with Signify myCreation and launched in an iconic hospitality setting.

The collection:

About d.ls collection x stylt

The d.ls collection x Stylt is the first tangible outcome of this collaboration and marks the debut design collection of d.ls – Duni Lighting Solutions.

Premiering globally during Milan Design Week, the collection sets a new standard for cordless ambience in contemporary hospitality.

Developed in close collaboration with Signify myCreation, the collection combines Stylt's design vision with sustainable 3D-printed materials. Through this partnership, design intent is translated into scalable, responsible production—enabling complex forms, reduced material waste, and a new level of material expression.

The collection is introduced through three distinct design expressions — Pleat, Bouclé, and Grid — each exploring texture, structure, and light diffusion in its own way, while sharing a common ambition: to turn light into atmosphere, and atmosphere into experience.
