Autonomous Trading.

We analyze XAUUSD market on daily and weekly levels, focusing on higher timeframes. After setting these levels, we zoom in to observe market movements. We employ two strategies: S&R (Support & Resistance) and kill zones, plotted on 1-hour and 4-hour timeframes. Breakouts, where price deviates from trend, are sought for profitable trades. Economic calendar monitoring is crucial, especially for USD-related news impacting gold prices. "In times of economic wars, precious metals rise."

Our Investment Portfolio

We analyze the XAUUSD market based on daily and weekly levels, primarily focusing on higher timeframes. Once we've identified and established these levels from the higher timeframes, we delve deeper to observe market movements. What occurs at this level? If we further zoom in regarding price, we employ two strategies. One common strategy is the S&R (Support & Resistance) approach, along with the utilization of kill zones. These two strategies are plotted on slightly lower timeframes (1 hour and 4 hours). Within these timeframes, we seek out breakouts. Now, what constitutes a breakout? It's a point where the price diverges from the current trend. For example, gold has experienced a significant rise in the last two weeks, from 2050 to 2100, indicating a bullish trend. We search for instances where the market deviates from this trend, often leading to profitable trades with substantial gains.

Additionally, we closely monitor the economic calendar, as any high-impact news concerning the USD rate directly influences the price of gold.

We regretfully can't disclose more than this to our esteemed customers. 😊

Always remember: "In times of economic wars, precious metals will rise."
