

GlyphWorld WorkSheets

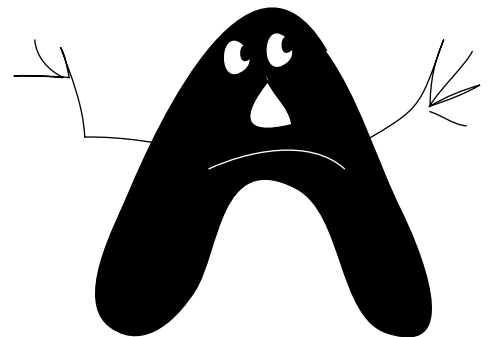

for creative typography

By Leah Maldonado

Knowledge of the shape of words and the possibilities they offer for communication can be very useful to the graphic designer when it comes time to make warning signs.

—Bruno Munari

Draw the letter B like it's holding its breath

Find a partner and ask them to describe a letter with just thier legs and arms (no talking!), draw what they describe

Draw the letter C like it has a funny secret

Draw the entire alphabet with your mouth! hahahahahaha

Draw a letter upsidedown

Draw a lowercase “g” like a friendly person

Draw a lowercase “g” like
a mean person

Draw all the curvy letters with only straight lines

Draw a family of letters (give them a pet too).

Draw an uppercase M with shoes on and a lowercase m with bare feet.

Draw a “y” in the shape of your earliest memory

Draw a lowercase “f” that is furry and an uppercase F that is made of stone.

Draw the alphabet with your left hand (if you're left-handed you're lucky!)

Without lifting your hand, draw your name in the shape of your mom and the name of your mom in the shape of you.

Draw a letter that looks like water and a letter that looks like a fish.

Close your eyes and draw the letter “s” so that it looks like your face.

Draw an uppercase "T" and a lower case "t" like a big sister and a little brother.

Draw the letter “q” with a only triangles.

Draw yourself drawing a letter

Draw the letter “R” like it had too much coffee.

Draw all the straight line letters with curvy lines

Draw two letters that like to hold each other's hand

Draw the boyfriend of the letter “Kk”

Draw the big sister of the letter "Xx"

Think about the shape of your soul and draw a letter that looks like it.

Draw a letter that looks like the taste of a strawberry

Draw the pet dog of the letter "Ff"

Draw the whole alphabet with your feet hahahahah

Draw the whole alphabet in 5 seconds and then draw the whole alphabet for 5 whole minutes

Draw the whole alphabet as your favorite food
