

Masterworks of Modern Posters by Japanese Graphic Designers

This is an excellent collection of masterworks of posters by distinguished Japanese graphic designers. Total quantity is 339 items. They represent the essence of modern Japanese graphic design. The works made by 38 designers in the collection is selected strictly. The size of posters is 728 x1030cm. They are preserved in perfect condition.

Yusaku Kamekura (1915-1997) was a pioneer of Japanese graphic designer. He started his career under the influence of western design such as Bauhaus. He established various design committees and associations and engaged in important national projects such as Olympic game and universal exposition. He promoted the progress of Japanese graphic design as a leader. He made various posters for private companies such as Nikon. There are 33 works in the collection.

Ikko Tanaka (1930 – 2002) was the most well-known Japanese graphic designer after the generation of Kamekura. The characteristic of his designs is a blending of deeply rooted Japanese traditions with western modernism to produce contemporary visual expression. He has worked for the Seibu Saison Group and he is also credited with developing the Muji. He articulated the Muji vision and appearance, and he provided ideas and prototypes that way. He visualized the design strategy. He worked as Muji's art director until 2001. There are 91 important works in this collection.

Kazumasa Nagai (1929- ) is the most important graphic designer after Ikko Tanaka. He is also rooted Japanese tradition and the design is based on his aesthetics in cosmic idea of nature. He made series of animal and botanical abstract works. There are 37 works in the collection.

Shigeo Fukuda (1932-2004) was also an important poster designer. His works are made in a manner of “trick art” in a very simple style. His works were awarded in various competition prizes of posters in the world. There are 25 works in the collection.

Mitsuo Katsui (1931-2019) was a pioneer of computer graphic design. After 1960s, technology of printing made a great progress due to innovation of digital equipment. His design is the result of the innovation of computer technology. There are 14 works in the collection.

Tadanori Yokoo (1936- ) is a graphic designer and a painter. He had solo exhibition at MoMA and Fondation Cartier pour l'art contemporain, Paris. He had many exhibitions of graphic posters with Ikko Tanaka, Kazumasa Nagai and Shigeo Fukuda in 1970~80s. His style is influenced by Asian and Indian mystic philosophy. There are 16 works in the collection.

Eiko Ishioka (1938-2012) was an art director, graphic designer and costume designer for theater and movie. Her art direction for PARCO is the most successful project. After 1980, she moved to New York and designed for theaters and movies. She designed the costume for the opening ceremony of Beijing Olympic Games in 2008. There are 7 works in the collection.

Yoshio Hayakawa (1917-2009) was an illustrator and graphic designer in Osaka. His style has a classical nature of modernism. He made a significant influence on early Ikko Tanaka. Three designers (Hayakawa, Tanaka and Nagai) from Osaka moved to Tokyo in 1960s and they become main stream of Japanese graphic design. There are 13 works in the collection.

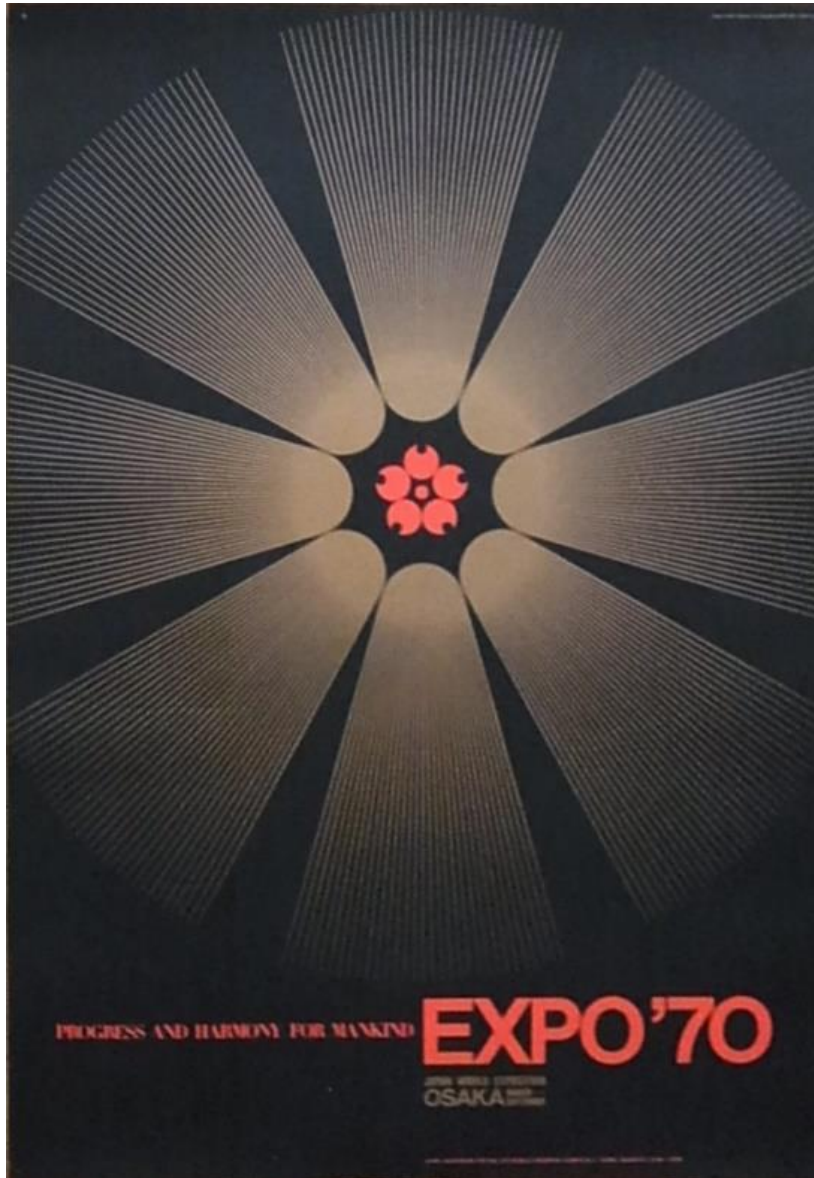

Koichi Sato (1944-2016) was a follower of Ikko Tanaka. The characteristic of his designs is deeply rooted in Oriental aesthetics such as shadow and blot. His works was awarded 1st prize at MoMA poster competition in 1988. His works are highly estimated among graphic designers today. There are 33 works in the collection.

Katsumi Asaba (1940- ) is also a follower of Ikko Tanaka. He is interested in typography and Asian aesthetics. He designed logo for many companies, art projects and Olympic game. One of the most successful work was the art direction is Seibu department store in 1980s. There are 13 works in the collection.

Besides the works by the designers above, there are nice works by the following designers. Shin Matsunaga (4 items), Gan Hosoya (4), Keisuke Nagatomo (4), Makoto Wada (4), Ryuichi Yamashiro (4), Takenobu Igarashi (4), Tetsuya Ohta (3), Kiyoshi Awazu (3), Akira Uno (2), Seitaro Kuroda (2), Kohei Sugiura (2), Masayoshi Nakajo (2), Takahisa Kamijo (2) Makoto Saito (2), Zenji Funabashi (2), etc.
