The IRA account is established by the Custodian in the capacity of a Directed Custodian for the exclusive benefit of the Account Owner who agree to the below terms and conditions.

 - i. The designated beneficiary is the participant's surviving spouse, the remaining interest will be distributed over the surviving spouse's life expectancy as determined each year until such spouse's death, or over the period in paragraph (a)(iii) below if longer. Any interest remaining after the spouse's death will be distributed over such spouse's remaining life expectancy as determined in the year of the spouse's death and reduced by 1 for each subsequent year, or, if distributions are being made over the period in paragraph (a)(iii) below, over such period.

But, in such case, if the participant's surviving spouse dies before distributions are required to begin, then the remaining interest will be distributed in accordance with paragraph (a)(ii) above (but not over the period in paragraph (a)(iii), even if longer), over such spouse's designated beneficiary's life expectancy, or in accordance with paragraph (ii) below if there is no such designated beneficiary.

The required minimum distribution for a year under this paragraph (a) is determined using the participant's (or, if applicable, the participant and spouse's) attained age (or ages) in the year.
 - b. The required minimum distribution under paragraphs 3(a) and 3(b)(i) for a year, beginning with the year following the year of the participant's death (or the year the participant would have reached age 70½, if applicable under paragraph 3(b)(i)) is the account value at the close of business on December 31 of the preceding year divided by the life expectancy (in the single life table in Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-9) of the individual specified in such paragraphs 3(a) and 3(b)(i).
 - c. The required minimum distribution for the year the participant reaches age 70½ can be made as late as April 1 of the following year. The required minimum distribution for any other year must be made by the end of such year.
6. The owner of two or more IRAs (other than Roth IRAs) may satisfy the minimum distribution requirements described above by taking from one IRA the amount required to satisfy the requirement for another in accordance with the regulations under section 408(a)(6).

The custodian acts as a "fiduciary" for this account as defined by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, as amended ("ERISA"), by the Internal Revenue Code or any other applicable local, state or federal laws only in relation to its custodial services. The Custodian does not, and the Account Owner acknowledges that the Custodian does not assume fiduciary responsibilities for any Account Owner's Investment Decisions associated with the account. . The Account Owner also acknowledges that the Account with the Custodian will be established in the name of the Custodian for the benefit of the Account Owner and Account Owner agrees that all transactions related to the Account must go through the Account held with the Custodian otherwise this could result in tax implications. It is the Account Owner's responsibility (not the Custodian's) to select and monitor the investments in the Account. The Account Owner has the sole responsibility, authority and discretion for the selection of any and all investments in the SIMPLE IRA Account and accepts full and sole responsibility for such selection ("Account Owner's Investment Decisions"). The Custodian provides no investment, legal, or tax advice or recommendations related to your account. Further, the Account Owner is fully and solely responsible for monitoring any and all investments in the SIMPLE IRA Account and accepts full and sole responsibility for the success or failure of such investments. Assets in your account are not guaranteed by Digital Trust and are subject to investment risk, including the possible loss of your investment value.
- b. Authorized Agent. The Account Owner may appoint a third party as their authorized agent for information access to the Custodial Account by notifying the Custodian in a form acceptable to the Custodian. The Custodian shall assume that the authorized agent is at all times qualified to act as agent for the Account Owner and shall recognize the agent as having the authority to obtain information related to the Account until such time as 1.) the Account Owner notifies the Custodian in writing that he has removed the authorized agent, or 2.) the Custodian is notified of the death of the Account Owner. It is the Account Owner's responsibility for making arrangements to receive such information or monitor public sources for such information.
- d. Prohibited Transactions. It is the Account Owner's responsibility to determine if a transaction constitutes a prohibited transaction. Generally, a prohibited transaction is any improper use of your IRA Account by you, your beneficiary, or any disqualified person. Disqualified persons include members of your family (spouse, ancestor, lineal descendant, and any spouse of a lineal descendant). The following are some examples of prohibited transactions with a SIMPLE IRA. 1.) Borrowing money from it. 2.) Selling property to it. 3.) Using it as security for a loan. 4.) Buying property for personal use (present or future) with IRA funds. The Custodian reserves the right to request a certification from the Account Owner that an Investment Direction provided by the Account Owner does not create a prohibited transaction, however, if a certification is not requested that does not indicate a transaction is not prohibited. Custodian reserves the right to take any action necessary, within its discretion, which may include resigning from the IRA Account.
- e. Unrelated Business Income ("UBIT"). A IRA is subject to tax on unrelated business income if it carries on an unrelated trade or business. An unrelated trade or business means any trade or business regularly carried on by the IRA or by a partnership of which it is a member, and not substantially related to the IRA's exempt purpose or function. If the IRA has $1,000 or more of unrelated trade or business gross income, the IRA must file a Form 990-T, Exempt Organization Business Income Tax Return and pay the tax due. Account Owner is responsible for monitoring UBTI for their IRA Account which you may hold and prepare, or have prepared, the proper 990-T tax form and forward it to Custodian for filing, along with authorization to pay any tax due from the IRA Account. In order to file the 990-T tax form, the Account Owner must apply for an Employer Identification Number (EIN) for the IRA Account before requesting Custodian to pay any tax owed. This EIN must be used on the 990-T tax form, the Account Owner social security number or Custodians EIN cannot be used.

- f. Employer Contributions. If the Account Owner's IRA Account is the type of IRA which may receive contributions from the Account Owner's employer, the Custodian shall not be liable for any expenses, losses, damages, costs or penalties incurred as a result of the failure of the employer of the Account Owner to make any contributions to the IRA Account required under Account Owner's IRA plan. The Custodian is not responsible for monitoring the employer's contributions to your Custodial Account or notifying Account Owner of the employer's contributions. If applicable, the Account Owner is responsible for contacting the employer regarding its contributions and monitoring those contributions.
- g. Account Owner's Representations. Account Owner represents and warrants that any information given or any information that will be given in the future with respect to this Account is complete and accurate. Account Owner also agrees that any directions Account Owner or Account Owner's authorized agent give to the Custodian, or any actions Account Owner or Account Owner's authorized agent take will be proper under this Agreement and that the Custodian is entitled to rely upon any such information or directions. The Custodian shall not be responsible for losses of any kind that may result from such directions to the Custodian or from the Account Owner's actions, or the Account Owner's authorized agent's actions, or failures to act of both. Account Owner agrees to reimburse the Custodian for any losses the Custodian may incur as a result of such directions, actions or failures to act.
- h. Review of Statements. Custodian shall provide Account Owner with quarterly Account Statements containing the account assets and account activity within your Account. Please review the statement carefully and if you identify any discrepancies please document in writing and provide to Custodian via email within forty-five (45) days of the statement issuance at Operations@digitaltrust.com or via mail at the address listed on the statement. If the notice of discrepancies is not received within the forty-five (45) day time frame, it will signify your approval of the statement and precludes you from making future objections or exceptions regarding the information contained in this statement. Such approval by you shall be full acquittal and discharge of Custodian regarding the transactions and information on such statement. Issuance shall mean (1) the posting of your SIMPLE IRA Account Statement within the online platform or (2) the date of mailing of a paper SIMPLE IRA Account Statement.
- i. Fair Market Valuations. The IRS requires the Custodian to report the Fair Market Value ("FMV") of the account on an annual basis. It is the Account Owner's responsibility to ensure that the FMV is accurate. The valuation for investments must be provided to the Custodian on a timely basis by the Account Owner or another party chosen by the Account Owner for this purpose ("Valuation Agent") and identified as such in a written document delivered to the Custodian. It is the Account Owner's responsibility to determine and provide the valuation of Alternative Assets to the Custodian. The Custodian shall have no responsibility for acting on an FMV reported by the Account Owner or Valuation Agent. For Alternative Assets such as investments in limited liability companies, limited partnerships, hedge funds, and other similar entities, the Account Owner directs the Custodian to obtain the FMV of the Account Owner's Alternative Assets from the investment entity itself and hereby appoints each such entity as the Valuation Agent for the Account's investment in the entity itself. Each Valuation Agent shall be required to sign such documents as the Custodian shall deem appropriate or necessary to confirm the understanding and agreement of the Valuation Agent to its obligation to provide such to the Custodian. Failure of the Account Owner or Valuation Agent to provide a timely valuation shall be the sole responsibility of the Valuation Agent or the Account Owner, as the case may be, and the Custodian shall not be required to take any further steps to secure an updated FMV for the Account. The Custodian shall not be responsible for the timeliness or the accuracy of any FMV of any Alternative Asset furnished by the Account Owner or a Valuation Agent. The Custodian shall reflect the latest valuation received on an asset in the Custodial Account's statements on a timely basis, but the Custodian shall have no duty to inform the Account Owner or to follow up with any Valuation Agent with respect to the status of any such additional valuations. The Custodian shall have no duty or responsibility to solicit any valuation from either the Account Owner or the Valuation Agent. If the Custodian does not receive an updated FMV for an Alternative Asset, the Custodian shall be entitled to use the last FMV provided to the Custodian, or if none, the original purchase price for the Alternative Asset in question (such last FMV or original purchase price, as the case may be, shall hereinafter be referred to as the "Last Value").
- j. Indemnity. Custodian shall be indemnified by Account Owner against any liabilities, losses, damages, costs and expenses (including but not limited to legal fees) incurred by Custodian arising out of any action taken or omitted to be taken by the Custodian hereunder or pursuant to any Instructions, including but not limited to (i) any taxes or other governmental charges, and any expenses related thereto, which may be imposed or assessed with respect to the asset/investment, and/or (ii) the Custodian or any nominee or agent of the Custodian, appearing as holder or holder of record of the asset/investment or any part thereof, but excluding those liabilities, losses, damages, costs and expenses which arise (whether through act or omission) as the result of fraud, willful default or gross negligence on the part of the Custodian in the performance of its duties under this Agreement.

In that case, we will earn float on the amount of the check from the date it is issued until the date the check is presented and paid.

These notices will be sent through electronic delivery (email) and will be considered delivered the same day as sent. If you have opted out of electronic delivery, communications sent to you through the United States Postal Service are considered delivered five (5) business days after the postmark date. It is the Account Owner's responsibility to notify the Custodian of any email address change or residential address change. Custodian will not be held liable for any losses or damages if the Account Owner has not provided Custodian with the most current address information. The electronically signed copy of this document should be considered equivalent to a printed hard copy form. It is considered a true and complete record of the document, admissible in arbitration and/or administrative hearings or proceedings. Your electronic signature on the Application and other electronic forms such as the Investment Direction are considered valid and the same as if the paper form or Application were signed.
- 6. Distributions. Account Owner will provide full and complete instructions for any distributions out of the Account Owners IRA. Custodian offers no tax or legal advice and Account Owner should consult with their tax or financial advisor to understand the implications of the action requested. Instructions should be submitted to Custodian in a manner acceptable to the Custodian. Custodian will not under any circumstances be responsible for the timing, purpose or propriety of any distribution from the account, nor shall the Custodian incur any liability or responsibility for any tax or penalty imposed on account of any distribution. Custodian may make any payment or distribution required or authorized hereunder by mailing a check or other property or by ACH or Federal wire or other electronic transfer to the payee at the address last furnished to the Custodian. Custodian shall not be liable for any payment made in good faith without actual knowledge of any changed condition or status of any person receiving benefits hereunder.
- Custodian may, but shall not be obligated to, pay any estate, inheritance, income, or other tax or assessment attributable to any property or interest held in the IRA Account out of the assets of the IRA Account upon such information or direction as it may require. Before payment of any benefit, Custodian may also require releases or other related documentation from the taxing authority and require indemnification from such payee as may be necessary for the Custodian's protection against tax liability.
- 7. Designation of Beneficiaries. In the event of your death, any account balance will be paid to your beneficiary designation deemed legally valid by the Custodian. In the event that the beneficiary designated is a minor or not of sound mind, the Custodian may at its discretion make beneficiary payments to such person acting as a parent or guardian of said beneficiary.
- a. Validity. A beneficiary designation is deemed legally valid when the Account Owner has provided a full complete and executed designation clearly providing if the Account Owner is adding to or changing a portion of the then current beneficiary designation form in a format approved by the Custodian. Any valid beneficiary designation shall be effective upon receipt by the Custodian. Upon opening your account, you can designate your beneficiaries, and while still living, you can change your beneficiaries by submitting a fully completed Change of Beneficiary form acceptable to the Custodian.

- b. Beneficiary Designations and Change of Beneficiaries. In the event of marriage, divorce, death, adoption and the birth of children the Account Owner should evaluate the beneficiaries listed on the SIMPLE IRA account and provide the Custodian with a fully completed Beneficiary Designation Change Form to update the SIMPLE IRA Account. The Custodian reserves the right to reject or not accept a beneficiary designation not made to individuals or entities. If you do not live in a "community property" State, you are free to name any person or entity as your SIMPLE IRA beneficiary, even if you are married. In "community property" States, Account Owners who earn monies contributed to their SIMPLE IRA during a legal marriage will be required to provide a spousal consent to designate a person or entity as beneficiary other than their spouse. (Subject to changes in the law, "community property" States currently include Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin.)
- c. Death Distributions. Custodian will rely on a certified copy of the death certificate or other evidence deemed appropriate by the Custodian that certifies the Account Owner's death. The Custodian has no responsibility to search for beneficiaries if Account Owner does not provide beneficiary information for the SIMPLE IRA Account. By entering into this Agreement, you authorize Custodian to rely on any representation of facts made by the legal representative of your estate, any beneficiary, or any other person or source deemed appropriate by us, in determining the identity of unnamed beneficiaries. Your estate, and any unnamed beneficiaries further understand and agree that any information or instructions provided by such persons may be reviewed with counsel and Custodian may require further documentation to determine the beneficiaries. Prior to a distribution of assets to a beneficiary or the estate of the Account Owner, Custodian reserves the right to request from the beneficiary or the estate of the Account Owner, indemnification and discharge from any liability.
- d. Distribution to Estate. Custodian reserves the right to distribute the account to the estate of the Account Owner in the event that there is conflicting or incomplete information in determining the beneficiaries. In the event there are no beneficiaries provided to Custodian or all beneficiaries renounce their rights to receive any benefit from the Account, or in the event that no beneficiaries survive the Account Owner, the IRA will be distributed to your estate.
- 8. Successor Custodian. In the event that Digital Trust changes its name, reorganizes, is acquired by another organization, or if all or a portion of our entire organization is merged with another organization, that organization will automatically become the trustee or custodian of your Account so long as the organization is authorized to serve as a trustee or custodian and satisfies the requirements of the IRS Code Section 408(a)(2).
- 9. Termination or Resignation. Account Owner or Custodian may terminate this agreement at any time by giving written notice to the other. We can resign as Custodian at any time effective thirty (30) days after we send written notice of our resignation to you. Upon receipt of that notice, you must make arrangements to transfer your SIMPLE IRA to another Custodian (Successor Custodian) or request a distribution of your SIMPLE IRA. If you do not complete a distribution form or transfer your SIMPLE IRA within thirty (30) days from the date we send the notice to you, we have the right to either a.) transfer your SIMPLE IRA assets to a successor SIMPLE IRA trustee or custodian that we choose or b.) we may distribute your SIMPLE IRA to you in a single lump sum and/or re-register the assets to you in-kind. . In the event of re-registration of the assets, the Custodian's authority to re-register the assets supersedes any and all conflicting instructions, directions, or authorities with respect to said assets contained in any investment documents. If this Agreement is terminated, we may charge to your SIMPLE IRA a reasonable amount of money that is necessary to cover any costs associated with distributing or transferring your account, including but not limited to fees and expenses incurred and taxes. The Custodian shall not be liable for any taxes, penalties, or losses arising from any delays, omissions, acts, or other action or inaction of any other person(s) or entity, including the Account Owner in connection with transfer or distribution of the SIMPLE IRA Account. The Successor Custodian shall acquire all of the powers and authority conferred by the resigning Custodian. The transfer and delivery of assets to the Successor Custodian shall be a complete discharge and exoneration of any liability for the resigning Custodian unless the Account Owner or Successor Custodian notifies the resigning Custodian within forty-five (45) days from the date of resignation. Custodian may close the Account if it is not funded within ninety (90) days from Account opening.
- 10. Arbitration Agreement. In the event any legal or equitable claims or disputes arise out of performance of this agreement, or a breach of this Agreement, the parties agree to attempt to resolve the claim or dispute through good faith negotiation. In the event the parties are unable to resolve or settle such claim or dispute through negotiations, the parties agree that the claim or dispute will be settled by binding arbitration. Any arbitration proceedings shall be conducted in Las Vegas, Nevada, in accordance with the Commercial Dispute Resolution Procedures of the American Arbitration Association (AAA) in effect at the time a demand for arbitration is made. The Account Owner expressly waives any right he or she may have to establish or conduct litigation or arbitration in any other forum or location, or before any other body. The Account Owner may only bring claims and disputes in his or her individual capacity and not as a plaintiff or class member. Any and all claims arising out of or relating to this Agreement are required to have an arbitration filed within two (2) years from the date that the Account Owner knew of the facts giving rise to such claim or claims. The arbitrator shall have the authority to award reasonable attorneys' fees and costs, including the costs of arbitration, to the prevailing party.
- 11. Governing Law. This Agreement and all amendments hereto shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Nevada and the federal laws of the United States of America, and the obligations hereunder shall be determined in accordance with such laws. If any provision of this Agreement or the application thereof to any person or circumstances shall be determined to be invalid or unenforceable, the remainder of this Agreement, or the application of such provision to persons or circumstances other than those as to which it is invalid or unenforceable, shall not be affected thereby and each provision of this Agreement shall be valid and enforceable to the fullest extent permitted by law.
- 12. Other Administrative Powers. Anything in this Agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, the Custodian may choose to request direction from the Account Owner as to any specific action or situation that arises with the IRA Account. If a request for direction is made, the Custodian shall not incur any liability for following the Account Owner's direction or for taking no action if no such direction is furnished to the Custodian. The Custodian shall have the right, at the expense of the Account Owner, to seek a direction or approval of its accounts from a court of competent jurisdiction whenever the Custodian shall, in its sole discretion, deem it appropriate. The Custodian is not required to, but in its sole discretion may, exercise the full power and authority to settle, compound or abandon all claims and demands in favor of or against the IRA Account or Account Owner, including any claim that may be asserted for taxes under present or future laws; to maintain or defend any litigation necessary in its administration of the IRA Account if indemnified to its satisfaction against any expenses and liabilities sustained or anticipated in connection therewith; to retain any fiat subject to any dispute without liability for payment of interest or decline to make payment thereof, until final adjudication of such dispute by a court of competent jurisdiction.

PURPOSE OF THIS DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

The Internal Revenue Code (Code) requires that Digital Trust, LLC (Custodian) provide individuals establishing a SIMPLE Individual Retirement Account (SIMPLE IRA) with the information contained in this Disclosures document. This Disclosure document is intended to provide information to help you understand your IRA Account. This Disclosure document cannot cover every rule in the IRS Code and Custodian encourages you to refer to IRA Publications 590-A and 590-B and consult with a tax professional when necessary. Publications 590-A and 590-B will also provide insight to changes for the upcoming tax year.

You should read and complete the SIMPLE IRA Application (Application) which includes the Account Agreement provisions above along with the IRA Account Application, the Fee Schedule and the SIMPLE IRA Custodial Account Disclosures documents together as one which have been presented to the Account Owner prior to executing the Application. The IRS requires your Custodian to provide you, the Account Owner, with this Disclosure document.

DISCLOSURES

1. Information. You can set up a SIMPLE IRA with a bank or other financial institution, life insurance company, mutual fund or stockbroker. The firm that sets up your SIMPLE IRA is your Custodian. Digital Trust, LLC is the only Custodian of this IRA Account you are establishing.
2. Important Information About Procedures for Opening a New Account. To help the government fight the funding of terrorism and money laundering activities, Federal law requires all financial institutions to obtain, verify, and record information that identifies each person who opens an account. What this means for you: When you open an account, we will ask for your name, address, date of birth, and other information that will allow us to identify you. We may also ask to see your driver's license or other identifying documents.
3. Revocation of SIMPLE IRA. You have the right to revoke this SIMPLE IRA Account within seven (7) days of the date your SIMPLE IRA Account is established. If you exercise this right you are entitled to a return of the amount contributed to the IRA without penalty, service charge or administrative expenses. Please note, as Custodian, we must report on the appropriate IRS form both the contributions made to the account and the amount returned to you, however, this is not required if funded by a non-reportable transfer. If you do not exercise this right within seven (7) days of the date your SIMPLE IRA Account is established, it is assumed that you will have accepted the terms and conditions of the IRA you have established. If you choose to initiate an Investment Direction prior to the expiration of the seven (7) day period, this will signify you have declined this revocation right. Notice should be provided to the Custodian in writing through first class mail and must be postmarked within seven (7) days of the Account establishment date if you decide to revoke your Account. Revocation Notices can be mailed to: Digital Trust, LLC, 7336 W. Post Road, Ste 111, Las Vegas, NV 89113
4. Contributions.
 - a. Compensation. In order to contribute to an IRA, you must have earned income/compensation. According to the IRS, wages, salaries, tips, professional fees, bonuses, and other amounts you receive for providing personal services are compensation. An amount you receive that is a percentage of profits or sales price is compensation. For IRA purposes, compensation includes any taxable alimony and separate maintenance payments you receive under a decree of divorce or separate maintenance. If you were a member of the U.S. Armed Forces, compensation includes any nontaxable combat pay you received.
 - b. SIMPLE IRA Account. Form 5304-SIMPLE or Form 5305-SIMPLE is used by an employer to make an agreement to provide benefits to all eligible employees under a SIMPLE described in section 408(p). FORM 5304-SIMPLE is used if the employer wants to allow each employee to select the financial institution for receiving plan contributions. Form 5305-SIMPLE is used if the employer wants to require that all plan contributions initially go to the same financial institution. Your SIMPLE IRA Account is set up for your employer to make contributions to. Your employer is generally required to make either matching contributions or nonelective contributions to your plan every year.
 - c. Contribution Limits For 2021.
 - i. Salary Reduction Contributions. The contribution limit is $13,500 ($16,500 if you are age 50 or older*). If you participate in a any other qualified plan during the year and you have a salary reduction contribution for that plan, your SIMPLE contributions count towards the annual overall limit of $19,500. This contribution limit is subject to an annual cost-of-living adjustment by the IRS from year to year and you should check the IRS site for updated information each year. * The IRS allows for a "catch up contribution" of $3,000 only for taxpayers aged 50 or over. However, the catch up contribution you can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of 1) The catch up contribution limit. 2) The excess of your compensation over the salary reduction contributions that are not catch up contributions.
 - ii. Employer Matching Contributions. Employers are generally required to match your salary reduction contributions on a dollar-for-dollar basis up to 3% of your compensation. This only applies if you have elected to make contributions. Employers may choose a lower matching contribution percentage. However, the amount must be at least 1% and the employer must notify you of the lower match within a reasonable period of time before the 60-day election period for the calendar year.
 - iii. Nonelective Contributions. Instead of matching contributions, an employer may make nonelective contributions of 2% of your compensation as long as your compensation is at least $5,000. Only $290,000 of your compensation can be taken into account to figure the contribution limit.
 - d. Tax Treatment of Contributions. Employer contributions to your SIMPLE IRA can be excluded from your gross income. However, salary reduction contributions are subject to social security, Medicare, and FUTA taxes. Matching and nonelective contributions aren't subject to these taxes.
 - e. Contribution Deadline. The employer must deposit salary reduction contributions no later than 30 days after the end of the month in which you would have received the funds. Employers must deposit matching contributions or nonelective contributions no later than the due date (including extensions) of the employer's federal income tax return deadline.

5. Distributions.

- a. Distributions Generally. Distributions from your SIMPLE IRA will be processed by the Custodian upon direction from the Account Owner in a manner that is acceptable to the Custodian. Custodian is not responsible for acting on instructions that were provided in error or that do not provide all the required information. If you direct the Custodian to distribute from your SIMPLE IRA Account before you have reached the age of 59 ½, the IRS describes these as “premature” or “early” distributions. These distributions are subject to a 10% early withdrawal tax which is in addition to the income tax that must be paid on the distribution. There are a number of exceptions to this 10% early withdrawal tax. For example, individuals that are disabled or first-time homebuyers or a qualified reservist are among those not subject to this additional tax. Please consult with a tax advisor for guidance on your distribution situation. Taxable distributions from your IRA are taxed as ordinary income. You can elect to have Federal Tax withheld at the time of distribution. State taxes will be withheld for the required states according to the state’s guidelines. The Custodian’s distribution form will provide the elections available.
- b. Required Minimum Distributions. For IRAs (including SEP and SIMPLE IRAs) you must start taking distributions from your IRA by April 1 of the year following the calendar year in which you reach age 72. For each year after your required beginning date, you must withdraw your RMD by December 31st. If you take your initial RMD between January 1st and April 1st, you will have two required distributions for the year as the second RMD is due by December 31st. To avoid having to report two distributions for the same tax year, you can take your first RMD by December 31st of the year you turn 72. If you do not take any distributions, or if the distributions are not large enough to satisfy the requirement, you may have to pay a 50% excise tax on the amount not distributed as required. If you have more than one IRA that is subject to the RMD rule, you can satisfy the requirement by taking the distribution out of one of the IRAs or multiple IRAs as long as the required distribution will be satisfied. For additional information including the amount required to be distributed, please see IRS Publication 590-B. The SIMPLE Individual Retirement Custodial Account Agreement also had additional information on RMDs in Section IV.
- c. Distributions Under Divorce, Levys and Similar Court Directives. In the event that the Custodian is presented with a Court Order to distribute all or part of your IRA due to divorce, Custodian will transfer the assets into an IRA account of the receiving spouse. The portion or amount transferred will have no tax implications to you if the Court Order is received and acceptable to the Custodian. The Custodian reserves the right to request additional information from you or your former spouse to carry out such orders. In some instances, such as a levy or a court order, the Custodian may make a distribution from the IRA Account without instruction from the Account Owner. In those cases, the distribution may be reportable to the IRS as a taxable event.
- d. Rollovers. Generally, a rollover is a tax-free distribution to you of cash or other assets from one retirement plan that you contribute to another retirement plan. This rollover must be completed within sixty (60) days from the date you received the payment or distribution. There are several exceptions to this sixty (60) day rule; however, you are required to provide your Custodian with a certification, meeting the IRS requirements, indicating you are eligible for one or more of these exceptions. The contribution to the second retirement plan is called a “rollover contribution.” Common rollovers to a SIMPLE IRA come from: a.) A traditional IRA. b.) An employer’s qualified retirement plan for its employees. c.) A deferred compensation plan of a state or local government (section 457 plan). d.) A tax-sheltered annuity plan (section 403 plan). NOTE: Rollovers from Traditional IRAs or SEP-IRAs into or out of a SIMPLE IRA can only take place after two (2) years. The 2-year period begins on the first day on which your employer deposits contributions in your SIMPLE IRA. Rollovers between two SIMPLE IRAs are not subject to the two (2) year waiting period. Rollovers from Traditional IRAs, SEP-IRAs and SIMPLE IRAs into Roth IRAs must be included in your income for that year. The SIMPLE IRAs are subject to the two (2) year waiting period. Amounts that must be distributed during a particular year under the RMD rules (discussed in Pub. 590-B) aren’t eligible for rollover treatment.
- e. One-rollover-per-year limitation. You can make only one rollover from an IRA to another (or the same) IRA in any 1-year period regardless of the number of IRAs you own. The limit will apply by aggregating all of an individual’s IRAs, including SEP and SIMPLE IRAs as well as traditional and Roth IRAs, effectively treating them as one IRA for purposes of the limit. However, trustee-to-trustee transfers between IRAs aren’t limited and rollovers from traditional IRAs to Roth IRAs (conversions) aren’t limited. The 1-year period begins on the date you receive the IRA distribution, not on the date you roll it over into an IRA.
- f. Property Rolled Over. If property is distributed to you from your IRA and you complete the rollover by contributing property to an IRA, your rollover is tax free only if the property you contribute is the same property that was distributed to you. For example: if you received cash from your IRA and roll it over to an eligible account, the rollover contribution into the eligible account must be in cash.
- g. Partial rollovers. If you withdraw assets from a SIMPLE IRA, you can roll over part of the withdrawal tax free and keep the rest of it. The amount you keep will generally be taxable (except for the part that is a return of nondeductible contributions). The amount you keep may be subject to the 10% additional tax on early distributions as described above.

6. Investments.

- a. Investments-No Duty to Review or Monitor Investments. The Custodian shall have no duty or responsibility to review any investment held in the IRA Account or any investment under consideration by the Account Owner or any purchase directed by the Account Owner with respect to any issue, including but not limited to, its safety, risk, suitability or whether or not it should be registered as a security with the appropriate government agencies and shall have no liability with respect to its safety, risk, suitability or whether or not it should be registered as a security with the appropriate government agencies. The Custodian shall not be responsible to investigate or perform any due diligence on any investment, investment sponsor or any principal involved with any investment. Further, the Custodian has no duty to monitor any investment held in the IRA Account. Under this agreement the Custodian provides Custody Services for the assets selected by the Account Owner. Custodian acts on the Investment Directions provided by the Account Owner and has no responsibility for the performance or suitability of the assets selected by the Account Owner. Acting on the Account Owner’s Investment Direction in no way implies endorsement by the Custodian of the assets selected by the Account Owner. The Custodian has no responsibility, authority, or discretion for the selection, purchase, sale, monitoring, or continued holding of any investment in the IRA Account. At its sole discretion, the Custodian can refuse to act as Custodian on any asset selected by the Account Owner.
- b. IRA Owner Investment Responsibility. The Account Owner has the full responsibility to review and investigate the assets they direct the Custodian to invest in for their IRA Account. It is the Account Owner’s responsibility, not the Custodian’s, to select and monitor the investments in the IRA Account. The Account Owner has the sole responsibility, authority and discretion for the selection of any and all investments in the IRA Account and accepts full and sole responsibility for such selection. Further, the Account Owner is fully and solely responsible for monitoring any and all investments in the IRA Account and accepts full and sole responsibility for the success or failure of such investments. The Custodian has no responsibility, authority, or discretion for the selection, purchase, sale, monitoring, or continued holding of any investment in the IRA Account. It is the Account Owner’s responsibility to investigate and understand the nature of the investments and risks involved with the investments chosen by the Account Owner.
- c. Pledging IRA Assets. If you use (pledge) a part of your SIMPLE IRA account as security for a loan, that part is treated as a distribution and is included in your gross income. You may have to pay the 10% additional tax on early distributions discussed in item 8.) above and in IRS Publication 590-B.

- d. Prohibited Investments. The IRS Code does not permit IRA funds to be invested in life insurance or collectibles. The IRS considers the following items as collectibles: artwork, rugs, antiques, metals, gems, stamps, coins, alcoholic beverages, and certain other tangible personal property. The IRS has indicated that there are some exceptions as noted here: Roth IRAs can invest in one, one-half, one-quarter, or one-tenth ounce U.S. gold coins, or one-ounce silver coins minted by the Treasury Department. It can also invest in certain platinum coins and certain gold, silver, palladium, and platinum bullion. If you invest your Roth IRA in collectibles, the amount invested is considered distributed in the year invested and you may have to pay a 10% additional tax on early distributions.
- e. Prohibited Transactions. Generally, a prohibited transaction is any improper use of your SIMPLE IRA account by you, your beneficiary, or any disqualified person. Disqualified persons include members of your family (spouse, ancestor, lineal descendant, and any spouse of a lineal descendant). If you or your beneficiary engages in a prohibited transaction in connection with your IRA account at any time during the year, the account stops being an IRA as of the first day of the year in which the prohibited transaction occurs. The IRA Account is treated as distributing all its assets to the Account Owner at their fair market value(s) on the first day of the year in which the prohibited transaction occurs. If the IRA Account ceases to qualify as an IRA because of a prohibited transaction by you or your beneficiary, you may have a taxable gain that is reportable as income. In addition, you or your beneficiary may have to pay other taxes. Some examples of prohibited transactions include buying property within your IRA Account for personal use, using the IRA Account as security for a loan and borrowing money from your IRA. Prohibited transactions are described in Internal Revenue Code (IRC) Section 4975. It is the Account Owner's responsibility and not the Custodian's responsibility to determine if a transaction constitutes a prohibited transaction. The Custodian reserves the right to request a certification from the Account Owner that the direction provided by the Account Owner does not create a prohibited transaction, however, if a certification is not requested that does not indicate a transaction is not prohibited. Custodian reserves the right to take any action necessary, within its discretion, which may include resigning from the IRA Account.
- 7. Inherited IRAs/Beneficiaries. Account Owner's should review and update their IRA Account beneficiaries by providing the Custodian with a completed Beneficiary Designation Form. This is especially important after life changes such as marriage, divorce, death, and birth or adoption of children. If you inherit an IRA, you are called a beneficiary. A beneficiary can be any person or entity the Account Owner chooses to receive the benefits of the IRA after he or she dies. Beneficiaries of the IRA must include in their gross income any taxable distributions they receive.
- a. Inherited From Spouse. If you inherit a SIMPLE IRA from your spouse, you generally have the following three choices. You can do one of the following: a.) Treat it as your own IRA by designating yourself as the Account Owner b.) Treat it as your own by rolling it over into your IRA, or to the extent it is taxable, into a Qualified employer plan, Qualified employee annuity plan (section 403(a) plan), Tax-sheltered annuity plan (section 403(b) plan), or Deferred compensation plan of a state or local government (section 457 plan). c.) Treat yourself as the beneficiary rather than treating the IRA as your own. If you make contributions (including rollover contributions) to the inherited IRA or if you don't take the RMD for a year as the beneficiary of the IRA, you will be considered to have chosen to treat the IRA as your own. You will only be considered to have chosen to treat the IRA as your own if: a.) You are the sole beneficiary of the IRA, and b.) You have an unlimited right to withdraw from it. However, if you receive a distribution from your deceased spouse's IRA, you can roll that distribution over into your own IRA within the 60-day time limit, as long as the distribution isn't an RMD, even if you aren't the sole beneficiary of your deceased spouse's IRA. See Publication 590-B for more information on RMDs.
- b. Inherited From Someone Other Than Spouse. If you inherit a SIMPLE IRA from anyone other than your deceased spouse, you cannot treat the inherited IRA as your own. This means that you can't make any contributions to the IRA. It also means you can't roll over any amounts into or out of the inherited IRA. However, you can make a trustee-to-trustee transfer as long as the IRA into which amounts are being moved is set up and maintained in the name of the deceased IRA owner for the benefit of you as beneficiary. See Pub. 590-B for more information. Like the original owner, you generally won't owe tax on the assets in the IRA until you receive distributions from it. You must begin receiving distributions from the IRA under the rules for distributions that apply to beneficiaries. Beneficiaries of an inherited IRA must generally begin receiving required minimum distributions by December 31 of the year following the year of the deceased person's death.
- 8. No Tax, Legal or Investment Advice. In its role as Custodian, Digital Trust, LLC does not provide any tax, legal or investment advice. It is your responsibility as the Account Owner to consult with your investment or tax advisor. The Custodian shall act on the Account Owners directions for transfers, investments and distributions of Fiat when the Account Owner has submitted directions in the manner required by Custodian. The Custodian is not responsible for losses or damages resulting from the delay of acting on a direction if the direction is unclear, incomplete and not in acceptable form to the Custodian. Additionally, the Custodian is not responsible for the performance of the assets selected by the Account Owner. Under this agreement the Custodian provides Custody Services for the assets selected by the Account Owner. Custodian acts on the Investment Directions provided by the Account Owner and has no responsibility for the performance or suitability of the assets selected by the Account Owner.
