Last February I received a letter from my pen pal in India. Ben Lee bought a Swiss watch on Friday.

I was awake very early that morning. It was a Tuesday in early December. I was staying with my Uncle Tom at his villa in Greece. The first tremor came at about half past four. It was a very mild one and it barely woke me up. I was just nodding off again when the second one came. My whole bed shook. I could hear my cousin, Carlos, starting to shout. I jumped out of bed and ran to my balcony. I saw Doctor Mouscouri falling about like a puppet. Suddenly my balcony started to shake violently. The next thing I knew I was being flung forward. I clung to a piece of the railing but I couldn't hold on. The last thing I remember was my Uncle Tom as he tried to grab my arm. I knew no more until I awoke in a hospital bed in Athens.
